TYRONE LEWIS

Tyrone Lewis began his career as an artist at an early age under the tutorage of his grandfather, a painter and naturalist. Living in a rural community of Arkansas, USA, he was taught a deep appreciation for nature, the beauty of the landscape, and schooled to interpret the depth of the view, on canvas.

Furthering his career, he went on to receive a B.F.A. degree from the Memphis College of Arts, during which time he won many awards. While studying art in Memphis, he met and married Barbara Sutherland, a fellow artist. Today, they make their home in the community in which he was born. Tyrone works full time as an artist, while Barbara sculpts, and breeds Egyptian Arabian horses. She stands the stallion, Ansata El Shahraf at their home on Baraka Farm.

Tyrone has been featured in multiple regional juried shows throughout the United States. Galleries in Tennessee, Arkansas, Texas, Georgia, Arizona and New Mexico have featured his works, as has Southern Accents Magazine, The Collectors Guide of New Mexico, and others. Tyrone's paintings have also been purchased by numerous corporations for their archival collections, as appreciable investments. His work also appears in private collections throughout the world.

His list of artistic achievements is extensive, including Honorable Mention for Artistic Excellence in the prestigious 2011 Salon International Annual Exhibition; the Juror's Choice Award in the Maryland Federation of Art, Annual National Landscaped Exhibition; and The Society of Master Impressionist International Exhibition. As one of the top juried shows in the world, The Salon International draws thousands of entries from the top artist, worldwide. Other highly competitive exhibitions in which his work has continuously been selected, include "Paint America," a show which selects only two paintings to represent each of the 50 American states, from thousands of entries; "Paint the Parks," an equally selective exhibition, focusing on scenes from America's National Parks; and many more. He serves on the Art Advisory Board of the Rich Mountain College, and is a respected member of the art community. Of his work Tyrone says, "Having been influenced by my grandfather, I found my first endeavors in the visual arts, were portrayals of the landscape.

Over the years I have identified myself with various imagery and varied venues, yet I always come back to the landscape and its forms. I know not the reason other than the fact that the melody is always in perfect harmony, regardless of conditions."

Tyrone's skillful use of color and light faithfully represent the ever changing landscapes of the horizon. Traveling throughout the United States, Europe and Egypt, he faithfully brings life to his canvases, freezing in time the beauty of nature. With an understanding drawn from the roots of his childhood, molded with appreciation of art and nature, he has matured to become a serious, dedicated, fine artist of significance.
