

LAHEEB

A Tribute

Laheeb in Egypt.

“Laheeb is a dream horse. He is beautiful, very complete and without defects. His disposition is unbelievable. I have never seen a stallion as gentle and as peaceful as Laheeb, all without losing a bit of any of the traits that you want in a stallion. He is tremendously charismatic and always the perfect gentleman.” Dr. Nasr Marei

In a world full of beautiful and exotic horses, there is only one Labeeb. For many he embodies the very essence of the ideal Arabian, perfectly capturing both its physical and spiritual qualities. Labeeb is one of those rare great horses that are simply 'larger than life' – not only stunningly beautiful, incredibly noble and charismatic, but an extremely significant sire worldwide. Since he is only thirteen, we can only guess at the full measure of the legacy he will leave behind.

A Star Is Born

Labeeb was born on January 2, 1996, at Ariela Arabians of Bnei Zion, Israel. His sire was the highly decorated and internationally acclaimed sire of champions, Imperial Imdal [Ansata Imperial x Dalia by Morafic], who stood at the farm for three years during the 1990s; his dam was the imported foundation broodmare AK Latifa [Ibn Moniet el Nefous x Siralima by Ansata Ibn Halima], who topped the 1985 Legacy Sale, at $345,000.

Labeeb is Dahman Shahwan by strain, tracing back to El Dahma through Bint Sabbah. He is strongly linebred on both the top and bottom of his pedigree to Morafic and Ansata Ibn Halima, two of Nazeer's most influential sons, and is a grandson of U.S. National Champion Stallion Ansata Ibn Sudan. Through his dam he traces to the stallion Sirecho, an important broodmare sire carrying rare old Egyptian blood.

From the moment he was born, Laheeb was a remarkable colt. Veteran Arabian judge Dr. Nasr Marei was among the first group of horse breeders from Egypt to visit Ariela, and he remembers well his first look at Laheeb.

“He was still next to his dam, only three month old, but I could tell already that he was very special. He was bouncing around elegantly, independent and full of confidence. His arched, upright neck caught my eye immediately. It was shaped perfectly, standing on a beautifully angulated shoulder. Since that very first encounter, I followed him wherever he went and was keen to know how he developed, and later on, how he would produce. I was never disappointed.”

While still a suckling, Laheeb made history as one of the very first Israel-bred horses to compete at the Middle Eastern Championship show in Amman; there he won his first international title, Best Arabian Foal at Foot. As a yearling he won the title of Israeli National Champion Colt and was high-scoring horse at the same show. Soon afterwards he was off to begin a European show campaign, handled throughout by the extremely talented Arabian presenter, Frank Spoenle of Germany, who has handled Laheeb since birth.

An Opportunity in Poland

Laheeb lived up to his early promise and won First place in his age class at the 1998 All-Nations Cup show in Aachen. There he caught the eye of two of Poland’s most experienced horsemen, Marek Trela, Director of Stadnina Koni Janow Podlaski, and Jerzy Bialobok, Director of Stadnina Koni Michalow, both State Studs of Poland. They approached Ariela about leasing Laheeb to serve as chief sire at Michalow during 1999, and then at Janow Podlaski the following year. This would prove a tremendous opportunity for Laheeb.

Bialobok recalls, “I liked Laheeb both as a yearling and as a two-year old, especially because he had very good correct leg conformation for a horse of Egyptian blood. His movement was good, he was tall, with a nice, sufficiently-long neck and precious and beautiful head. I was not afraid of crossing him with our mares.”

Following his first breeding season at Michalow, in 1999, Laheeb was returned to Frank Spoenle and shown at halter, winning several championship titles including Kauber Platte Junior Champion, European Reserve Junior Champion Colt in Verona, and Top Five at the World Championships in Paris. Following the World Championships, Laheeb was picked up from the Paris show grounds by the Janow horse van and returned to Poland.

Almost ten years and dozens of beautiful progeny later the Polish rationale seems obvious enough, but at the time, the idea that an unproven straight Egyptian stallion might serve as chief sire in Poland was extremely difficult to accept. Trust the Poles to be light-years ahead of the rest of us – they could already envision Laheeb’s potential contribution based on their experience with Palas [Aswan x Panel by Nil], a Nazeer grandson of 75% Egyptian blood.

In Laheeb they had found an almost perfect representative of the Saklawi I [Nazeer] sire line, one who both exemplified and could reproduce the Polish ideal of all that an Arabian horse should be – typey and elegant, with long harmonious lines and good movement.

The Poles were very satisfied with Laheeb’s first foal crop, as it soon became obvious that he combined beautifully, not with just some, but with the majority of the Polish mare families. Michalow Stud Directors Urszula & Jerzy Bialobok were quick to negotiate a new deal bringing Laheeb back to Michalow for the 2008 breeding season.

"Laheeb personifies all that is treasured in the Egyptian Arabian: unsurpassed breed type; dignified presence; an ultra-exotic, perfectly proportioned head; a high set, gracefully arched neck; superb balance and strength of coupling; smooth shoulders and quarters of good length, strength and slope; a well muscled, horizontal topline with a highly placed and proudly carried tail; good three-dimensional substance with plentiful width, depth and muscular development; squarely placed limbs with clean, dense bone and wide sinewy tendons; and a free-moving, animated stride with a distinct aristocratic carriage." Raymond Mazzei

Laheeb has proven so valuable in Poland that many Polish breeders take a very covetous view of the horse. Some say that Laheeb's true home is with them, maintaining that only in Poland are there enough truly great mares deserving of his attentions. His daughters at Michalow, although still young, have already proven to be extremely valuable broodmares, and at the annual Pride of Poland sales, Laheeb daughters have been in great demand and sold for very high prices. These include, among others, the Janow mare Siklawka [Siewka ex

ELLISSARA (out of Ekscella), an ER grey mare bred by Michalow Stud Poland, sold at the 2008 "Pride of Poland" Sale for 240,000 Euro to Saudi Arabia.

Eldon] who sold in 2007 to Qatar for 100,000 Euro, and the Michalow mares Egea [Egna ex Eukaliptus] and Ellissara [Ekscella ex Monogramm], who sold in 2008 to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia for the prices of 160,000 Euro and 240,000 Euro respectively.

A Tragic Accident

Looking at him today one might never guess, but at only four years old, Laheeb suffered a tragic accident and was slated to be humanely destroyed. After finishing a second successful breeding season in Poland, the Ariela team decided that it would be a good idea to attempt a freeze of Laheeb's semen. Since the technology was not yet available in Israel, it was arranged to send him to an equine center in Germany while he was still in Europe.

It was on the 17th of November 2000, while he was being collected at an equine reproductive center in Munich, that a tease mare kicked him in the right foreleg, breaking the ulna at the elbow. This break was particularly complex, because the actual joint was involved, affected Laheeb's ability to bring his leg forward and thus, to walk. For this reason, Laheeb's prognosis was very poor and the German experts advised euthanasia.

Ariela farm manager Chen Kedar remembers, "Right after the accident, under those terrible circumstances, I just couldn't face seeing Laheeb, so I asked our farm vet, Dr. Giora Avni, to immediately fly to Germany to see him, and to consult with the surgeons there."

Chen and Dr. Avni strongly agreed that Laheeb should receive every possible opportunity despite the poor prognosis. So, after consulting at length with the surgeons at the University of Munich, the decision was made to go forward with a very delicate surgery, one that involved placing metal plates and screws into the leg at the elbow joint. If successful, it would demand that the leg be kept off the ground for a long time afterwards.

"It was Laheeb's phenomenal character that made all the difference," explains Dr. Avni. "Throughout this ordeal Laheeb demonstrated amazing courage and tolerated whatever was asked of him. He was a model patient, stoically accepting the pain and the physical restraints necessary to keep him immobile."

However, following this first operation, there were major complications, because, as often happens in this type of surgery, the bone itself became badly infected.

Chen recalls, "During our stay at the Paris show, three weeks after the accident, we were told, for the second time, that Laheeb should be put down; this time due a very bad infection in the broken leg. At the clinic the opinion was that the horse would not make it."

"After a long struggle, sleepless nights, and interminable long distance calls to experts from all over the world, we reached a decision. We asked the clinic not to put Laheeb down, so that a second surgery could be performed. This time the plates were removed to let the bones knit together as best they could; our strategy was to try to at least salvage Laheeb as a breeding horse. The final outcome would depend mostly on Laheeb's own determination and toughness, and luck - a lot of luck..."

For months after the surgery Laheeb was confined in a stall in such a way that he could not walk or even turn around, and he was kept as thin as possible to keep weight off the affected leg.

"I went to see Laheeb in Munich six months after the accident," Chen remembers. "I thought I was ready to see him in bad condition, but I couldn't believe it when I saw him; he was half the size he used to be. I never saw a horse cringe so much. I was shocked and extremely pessimistic afterwards."

Laheeb spent about nine months at the clinic and was later sent to a special rehabilitation center in Germany for another six months, both to recover completely from his surgeries and to undergo intense physical therapy. It remained doubtful whether the horse would ever be completely sound again.

Chen was skeptical when Frank Spoenle called from Germany to report that he had seen Laheeb at the rehabilitation center and was surprised to see how well he was doing, even suggesting that perhaps one day he might return to the show ring. Sometime later Laheeb spent a month at Sponle's farm to do the required blood tests and paperwork before shipment back to Israel. Just before Laheeb's departure, on May 2, 2002, Sponle once again told Chen that one day they should consider showing him again. Chen remained doubtful, certain that he was simply being overly optimistic.

But this opinion proved to be a good prophecy, and Chen recalls, "At the 2003 Israeli Nationals, Frank and I stood together in the collecting ring, just looking at each other. People who know us well, know that neither Frank nor I are the most emotional of souls. But we simply couldn't believe that after all we had been through from the time that Laheeb was injured, here we were - once again standing in a show ring - with Laheeb! And Laheeb was there beside us, standing on all four legs - perfectly sound! It was an incredibly emotional, unforgettable moment for us both."

When the show was over, Laheeb was the judges' unanimous choice for Israeli National Champion Stallion.

Laheeb in Israel

Although most of his siring career has taken place abroad, Laheeb is a leading sire of show champions and winners in Israel. His very first foal crop, born in 1999, was small, including only about ten foals; until today Laheeb has sired over sixty purebred foals in Israel.

Among that very first foal crop was an exceptionally exotic and refined colt called Al Lahab, out of Ariela's own Thee Desperado daughter, The Vision HG, (ex Belle Star by The Minstril). Al Lahab grew up to become one of the world's most highly decorated stallions; his wins including the title All Nation's Cup Champion on two separate occasions, the title of World Champion Stallion, and Dubai Gold Cup Champion. He has also established himself as a major international sire for his proud owners, the Friedmann Family of Germany. A full younger brother, Al Hadiyah AA, was leased by La Movida Arabians in Austria, and won Junior Championship titles at both the 2008 Austrian Nationals and The Asil Cup in Germany, before his recent sale locally in Israel.

The straight Egyptian Laheeb daughter, Badawieh AA, out of Bahiba by Baahir, and bred by Eli Mislati and Ariela Arabians, was Junior Champion Filly at the Israeli Egyptian Event and Israeli National Champion Filly before her sale abroad. Now owned by Ajman Stud, UAE, Badawieh has gone on to win several championship titles in the Arabian Gulf, including 2009 Reserve Junior Champion Filly at the Al Khalediah Horse Festival in Saudi Arabia, and Junior Champion Filly at the Sharjah International Show.

Israeli-born progeny bred by breeders other than Ariela have also won championship titles abroad. The Egyptian-related stallion AA Assal (Asia), bred and owned by Avi Aharoni, is a multi-champion in Israel who won the 2008 Champion Stallion title at the International B Show in Stroben and the 2009 Supreme Champion Stallion title at the South of England Show in the UK.

The straight Egyptian stallion Atiq Haleeb (Hila B), bred by Tzviyah Idan and Kuti Aharon of Idan Atiq Arabian Stud and sold last year to the David Botha Family of Namibia, has had tremendous success in his first year showing abroad. In January 2009 he won the Champion Stallion and Supreme Champion Stallion titles at the regional Worcester show in South Africa's Western Cape, and he then went on to win Top Five stallion honors at the South African National Championships in April, and the title of Supreme National Champion Stallion of Namibia in September.

Some additional Israeli-bred straight Egyptian show champions sired by Laheeb include the Israeli Spring Show Reserve Junior Champion Filly and

Off to America

The renown American judge, breeder and bloodstock agent, Raymond Mazzei, is a respected world authority on Polish bloodlines and a frequent visitor to the Polish state studs. Mazzei noted the consistency of Laheeb's first get early on in Poland while they were still very young. "I knew I needed to see their sire, because those babies were simply outstanding," he relates.

In 2003 he finally got that chance during a private visit to Israel. He recalls, "It's true that I generally prefer Polish horses, but to be perfectly honest, I was so completely taken with Laheeb, that I didn't care what his breeding was. I already knew his foals, and I realized that I was looking at a major phenomenon."

Mazzei returned to Israel a year later to serve on the judging panel that would eventually award Labeeb with his third Israeli National Championship title. Following the show he proposed an exciting idea to Ariela manager Chen Kedar -- that Labeeb should travel to America, to stand at public stud under Mazzei's own management. The deal was struck leasing Labeeb to Furioso Farms and Ferlita Arabians, (at this time, the home of the famous Polish multi-champion Ecabo), and Labeeb flew to California during the summer of 2005 to prepare for the 2006 and 2007 breeding seasons.

In America Labeeb covered some of the country's finest pure Polish and Polish-related mares. Mazzei also established a small herd of select straight Egyptian mares to be bred to Labeeb. Their progeny will be covered with the finest Polish stallions available with the goal of creating horses that will be competitive not only in America, but also in Paris and Aachen.

Referring to the stallion as a 'miracle of nature', Mazzei maintains that "Labeeb is the most important Arabian breeding stallion alive today."

While in the States Labeeb was shown only once -- at the prestigious Egyptian Event in Louisville, Kentucky, where he was awarded the title 2006 Egyptian Event Reserve Supreme Champion Stallion behind his own son, Al Lahab.

In February 2008 Labeeb finished his breeding obligations in California and once again headed for the Michalow Stud in Poland.

Historic Exchange with Egypt

It is here that Labeeb's story comes full circle. Eleven years after his first visit to Ariela, Egyptian breeder Dr. Nasr Marei returned to Israel as one of the three distinguished judges who presided over the 2007 Israeli National Championship Show. When the final results were in, four out of the eight national champions they selected were sired by Labeeb.

Marei recalls feeling "...kind of proud of myself..." for not having been wrong in his first assessment of Labeeb at just three months old. By the time he left Israel he was wondering how he might incorporate Labeeb's blood into his own Al Badeia herd. Not long afterwards, Chen sent Marei an e-mail while he was away judging a show in Brazil. She wrote asking whether he knew of a stallion that Ariela could lease.

Chen recalls, "When Dr. Marei replied, he asked if we might be interested in his own stallion, the Asfour son Simeon Sharav. When I said yes, he asked if we would be interested in having Labeeb spend some six months in Egypt, to cover his own and several other mares that would be shipped to Al Badeia especially for Labeeb. I was extremely happy to agree and the deal was made in just 24 hours."

This deal became an important historic milestone, for it marked the very first stallion lease-exchange to take place between Egyptian and Israeli Arabian horse breeders. As part of the agreement, Al Maraam (Imperial Imdal x The Vision HG), half-brother to Labeeb, will stand at Al Badeia from August 2010 through March 2011.

Marei smiles delightedly as he recalls the second time he ever saw Labeeb. "It was at the Cairo International Airport, the day he arrived to stay with me for a breeding season," he relates. "I saw him coming out, led by my manager, Nasr Ayoub. From the moment I saw him, I was awestruck. He looked so impressive, gentle, magnificent and regal."

"I hugged him and rushed him to the farm, to his new, freshly painted stall, which gave him a view of the garden and swimming pool. I could look down from my bedroom window and see him there, enjoying the beautiful garden. He was flanked by my two major stallions, Farid Albadeia and Magd Albadeia. An awesome trio. I was extremely proud and thankful to have them at my farm."

"To tell you how confident I was in breeding with Labeeb, I bred him to all my available mares, in total sixteen mares. They come from different bloodlines, but I was very sure that Labeeb would do well with all of them. So far, four colts and four fillies have been born. Three of the fillies are superb and the fourth is very good. As for the colts, two are superb and two are very good. What more can a breeder ask?"

"They all have much of the same look of their father. Extremely good bodies, amazing neck sets and shape, excellent angled shoulder, pretty and small heads, terrific movement and an attitude. They are confident and have beautiful Arabian expression. Describing his foals is almost as if I am describing Labeeb himself, for he has all these attributes and more."

Home Again

Last April Labeeb finally returned home to Israel and his stall at Ariela Arabians. Once again the king is home, and available to Israeli Arabian horse breeders, who are quick to take advantage of this fact.

"Labeeb has been traveling the world almost non-stop for several years and he deserves a break", says Chen. "Besides, there are several mares here on the farm that we either bred or purchased specifically with him in mind. Laheeb has been missed and it's wonderful having him home."

In Arabic, 'Laheeb' is the word for flame. At only age thirteen, this particular Laheeb has left the light of his presence on four different continents. May his flame live on. □
