In the movies there seems to be a kind of charm attached to the image of a “Desperado.” Even though portrayed as a bold rebel, a “Desperado” seems to have a kind of irresistible magnetism, a free but restless spirit playing by his own rules. The term has been associated with a famous song and album by the Eagles, a heavy metal band named Desperado, a popular film in which Antonio Banderas played the leading role, and even a line of motorcycles – almost anything associated with unbridled but restless freedom seemed to fit the label “Desperado”. Is this what inspired the namesake for Thee Desperado? Perhaps, but no matter how one looks at it Thee Desperado’s story is uniquely his own.

This famous “Desperado” has long been the pride and joy of Judy and Jim Sirbasku, his proud owners for most of his life.

His beginnings in 1989 seemed to be with great anticipation. His dam AK Amiri Asmarr (TheEgyptianPrince x Asmarr) was owned by Tom and Martha Salome. She was one of the few straight Egyptian daughters of TheEgyptianPrince to be shown competitively since so many of them had a great reputation as exceptional producers, thus bypassing a show ring career. The Salomes were impressed with the young stallion The Minstril and his U.S. Top Ten Futurity win so thought he was a good choice for their excellent Egyptian Prince daughter. The Minstril was already making already himself a legend as a sire with a long line up of mare owners hoping for a perfect The Minstril foal. While it was only The Minstril's third season at stud, this mating was also to be AK Amiri Asmarr's very first foal being a maiden mare. On April 5, 1989 she produced a beautiful bay colt with the most uniformly perfect markings, balanced proportions and overall excellent quality. But that did not impress AK Amiri Asmarr one bit because she wanted nothing to do with motherhood and did not want this little bay colt anywhere near her. However the boldness of this youngster was to foretell of a "Desperado" who would make a name for himself no matter what his mother thought.

The proud bearing and style of Thee Desperado as well as his overall quality assured him a very successful show career. Javan Schaller photo.

His lifelong trainer, handler and friend, Shawn Crews tells how they all took turns helping out around the clock to make mother and son gradually become a family and within two weeks they were settled in together. By the time he was five weeks old the Salomes sold 60 percent ownership in the little colt to Gardner Bloodstock, famed for their success in promoting Ruminaja Ali and his son The Minstril. A week later eight breeders bought lifetime breedings to him. Then trouble struck several months after Thee Desperado was weaned. He developed severe colic requiring emergency surgery at Texas A & M. Shawn recalls rushing over to see him shortly afterward and from the moment he jumped up he was as strong as if nothing had happened. Despite the early challenges and set backs, Thee Desperado would let nothing stand in the way of the destiny he seemed to sense inside.

She is another outcross element in the pedigree of Thee Desperado also having no Nazeer or Moniet El Nefous breeding. She is the tail female line of Thee Desperado and he shows much of her facial character and rich mahogany bay color. Bob Dressler photo.

His show career began as a two year old and in his early years he won championships regionally and became Junior Champion at the Egyptian Event. Each year things got better and better in the show ring. Shawn points out that he caught the attention of trainer Bob Boggs who really liked the colt and wanted to become involved in giving him some top opportunities. Under the direction and guidance of Shawn Crews, who was not only Thee Desperado's trainer but also his friend, Thee Desperado was allowed to become a star on his own terms. With such a seasoned team behind him Thee Desperado went on to win U.S. National Top Ten and Canadian Top Ten stallion in 1993 at the same time his sire The Minstril won the same honors, a father and son feat still unequalled.

1993 was also the year that Judy and Jim Sirbasku purchased the majority interest in Thee Desperado. The following year in 1994 Thee Desperado won Scottsdale Champion Stallion, a very challenging feat, Canadian National Top Ten stallion and finally U.S. Reserve National Champion. Thee Desperado had finally achieved top recognition and Judy and Jim Sirbasku could no longer be content with part ownership so they became full owners of Thee Desperado, the horse of their dreams. And to this day Thee Desperado lives a pampered and comfortable life at Arabians LTD.

What is so interesting about the pedigree of Thee Desperado? If you study it closely and review his ancestry you discover that he is a unique amalgam of both related and outcross elements blended into one individual who is uniquely his own identity. A good analogy for such a pedigree is like the recipe for the most unforgettable dish. Attend any fine restaurant that is famed for one particular dish of the most sought after bouquet of flavors that you remember forever, and the secret is found in their recipe. A good recipe finds a unique way to blend strong flavors that would stand on their own into a new and memorable flavor.

Certainly a strong flavor in the recipe of many Egyptian pedigrees today is the immortal stallion Morafic. He is the sire line of Thee Desperado but also is present three times in the pedigree. Morafic's effect is strong for generations, imparting nobility, elevated carriage and style of movement. He also imparts very fine skin and clean flat bone. Much of this of course comes also from his sire Nazeer who is a key ingredient. The strain of Hadban Enzabi is highly desirable in Egyptian breeding and is not only the strain of Nazeer himself but also of the lovely Anter daughter Nabilahh (x Farasha). Her grandmother Yosreia produced the legendary Aswan (x Nazeer) in Russian and Polish bloodlines. Nabilahh is the tail female line of Thee Desperado, but she is also the dam of Khofo, the beautiful and athletic son of Morafic. And how is Khofo introduced into this recipe? He is the sire of the absolutely magnificent mare and champion producer, Bint Magidaa, dam of Ruminaja Ali, who has two lines to Morafic. Where else does the Hadban Enzabi strain appear in the recipe for Thee Desperado? From the beautifully proportioned Ibn Galal, who traces to Yosreia on both sides of his pedigree, and from the mare Bakria who is a Hadban Enzahi on both sides of her pedigree. The careful weaving of Morafic in the pedigree also introduces each time his immortal grand dam Moniet El Nefous, the undisputed queen of Egypt and a very strong source of classic beauty in the recipe. Her blood is intensified when Morafic was bred to his full sister in blood Bint Mona producing the legendary sire The Egyptian Prince, sire of Thee Desperado's dam. Yet for all the careful blending by line breeding these strong elements in the recipe, the female lines of both the sire and dam of Thee Desperado are relatively outcross having no lines to Nazeer in their pedigree. This is represented by the non-Nazeer mares Bakria, grand dam of The Minstril, and Asmarr grand dam of Thee Desperado. In each of these mares are multiple lines to the Rabdan El Azrak blood, noted for producing intelligent, athletic horses with long graceful necks and powerful shoulders and also a source of the dark bay and black color. Asmarr carries ten crosses to Ibn Rabdan noted for excellent bodies and long shapely necks. Thus the recipe for Thee Desperado is an amalgam of classic nobility and proud carriage with clean flat bone, fine skin, great beauty, beautifully balanced body, athletic talent from the Rabdan blood, all in a rich deep Mahogany bay color. However the soul is in the eyes and Thee Desperado has this in great measure from his magnificent great grandmother, Nagliab, a splendid mare who you can see much of in his face. I saw her years ago and was charmed by her lovely eyes and beautiful facial proportions.

This amalgam produced a very handsome kind of horse that is the total package for many admirers of the Arabian horse and obviously he has attracted a lot of attention. To see him in person, even now at age 20 there is a quality about him like a fine sculpture in which all lines flow into the next regardless in which position you are standing, and all of this in his rich mahogany color.

A brief review of some numbers and details indicates how popular he has become as a sire. Thee Desperado is the sire of 848 foals so far and he is only twenty years old this year. He has the distinction of being the sire of the most get of any straight Egyptian stallion ever. Of those 848 less than 12 percent are geldings so that means that an exceptionally high percentage of his get are of breeding potential. For eleven years in a row Thee Desperado was the leading sire of winners at the U.S. Egyptian Event. Even though he has been promoted heavily within the straight Egyptian community, he also attracted Arabian mares of other bloodlines. Aside from his many get in the U.S. and Canada, his get are now found worldwide with exports to the following countries: England, Belgium, Netherlands, Switzerland, France, Germany, Israel, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Qatar, The Emirates, Venezuela and Ecuador.

With those astounding statistics, it would be impossible within this space to give proper attention to all of his prominent get so I can only offer a sampling of some of them. A sampling of a few of the many well known sons of Thee Desperado include:

had successful show careers prior to their exportation. My Silk Stocking (x Anastaziaa) is in the broodmare band of Al Zobair Stud in Sharjah, UAE. Deserree is owned by Shaikh Sultan Bint Mohammed Al Qasimi, Ruler of Sharjah. Of course, through the immense popularity of her impressive sons Al Lahab and Al Maraam, The Vision HG (Thee Desperado x Belle Staar) is a popular broodmare the stud of Ariely Arabians in Israel.

I recently attended the 20th birthday party for Thee Desperado and it was a very enjoyable celebration. Clearly the love and enthusiasm for this great horse was apparent. He looked great and appeared younger than his 20 years, strutting his style and telling all younger stallions that he still is the one and only "Desperado". Few stallions of any bloodline could look back over two decades and see the enormous international impact they have already had on Arabian horse breeding, and knowing that there is more yet to come. Generation after generation of his get, grand get and great grand get were presented during the birthday celebration. I couldn't help but notice the great level of continuity that any breeder of Arabians would hope to achieve. And for all the horses presented at the celebration there seemed to be a consistent look in the eye. Perhaps it is, after all this time, those deep dark soulful eyes of Nagliab, the lovely bay mare who claims the matriarchy of Thee Desperado's lineage, radiating a special soulful look that has charmed thousands of Arabian horse lovers and continues to sparkle in the generations to come. □
